Getting into the 1940s groove with some help from DJ Mr Wonderful

RESIDENTS and visitors danced the afternoon away on 6 October.

They flocked to Stoke Newington Town Hall for the latest in a series of the well-attended events for over-50s that have taken place in Hackney this year.

Popular tea dance DJ, Mr Wonderful, provided music for the afternoon, which had a 1940s theme to mark the 70th anniversary of the Blitz. Turn to page 7

YOUNG people living in Hackney have until 5 November to apply for a share of £126,000 in funding to make their dream project a reality.

Over the last year, Hackney's Youth Opportunity Fund (YOF) panel has been awarding grants of up to £5,000 for projects that can help young people to develop both personally and socially.

The YOF supports activities for young people aged 13 to 19 – and up to the age of 25 – for those who are disabled or have a learning difficulty.

The YOF panel members are also aged between 13 and 19, and it is their job to read applications and make decisions about which projects will receive funding. Panel member Precious, 14, encouraged young people to think about applying. She said: “It’s youth empowerment in action. It gives young people the chance to be leaders; gives them confidence; allows them to aspire; and it’s a good way for them to engage in the community.”

“It gives young people the chance to be leaders, gives them confidence, allows them to aspire”

THE 20 newly-elected members of Hackney Youth Parliament celebrated after a nerve-wracking count on 15 October at Hackney Town Hall.

More than 3,600 young people cast their votes across the borough's four neighbourhood areas – Homerton, North East, Shoreditch and Stoke Newington. Voting took place at secondary schools and selected youth clubs in the borough.

The elections were part of Local Democracy Week, from 13-19 October, a campaign to connect young people with their local council. Hackney Youth Parliament gives young people the chance to represent the views of their peers. See the next edition of Hackney Today for more coverage and pictures. The full list of results are to be made available at: www.younghackney.org/elections

The secret of reaching 102?

Mrs Sinclair at the Town Hall celebrating her birthday (above) and in Dove's 'Campaign for Real Beauty' advertising campaign

 By
Marcel Reinard

THE secret to long life and good health? "There absolutely isn't one," said Hackney's 102-year-old, late blooming former model Irene Sinclair.

The Stoke Newington resident, who found fame six years ago leading Dove's 'Campaign for Real Beauty', visited Hackney Town Hall last month as part of her birthday celebrations. Her big day was on 23 September.

She said: "There were never freezers, tranquilisers, fertilisers, injections, tonics, pills or herbal teas. We just had fresh food and walked everywhere."

She offered a few words of wisdom during a reception given by Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Sally Mulready. But she remains playfully modest about the whirlwind career that saw her become an international star, aged 94.

Irene, who moved to Hackney in 1971, recalls how the cosmetic firm contacted her looking for an older person to feature in their campaign: "They were looking for someone in their late 70s, and weren't convinced when they heard about me, saying I was too old."

"But when they came to my door they said 'is your Mum in the flat? I said it's me!'"

Since then, she has stayed at the Dorchester, been portrayed on billboards in London, New York's Wall Street, and has been interviewed in some of the major fashion cities of the world – including Madrid, Milan, Paris, Berlin and New York.

Still enjoying life, Guyana-born Irene regularly travels to her favourite hotels in Spain and across the UK – always making sure she remains young at heart.

News in brief

A previous Activity For All open day

Everyone join the fun

BRITANNIA Leisure Centre is opening up for the latest in a series of popular 'Activity For All' days.

Taking place on 24 October, disabled and non-disabled participants will be able to try sports activities including badminton, archery, self-defence and trampolining.

Families, friends, carers, and adults and young people with a disability or special educational needs are all welcome. For those interested in arts, there will be an opportunity to try T-shirt painting and theatre workshops.

The event takes place from 10am to 4pm at Britannia Leisure Centre, 40 Hyde Road, N1.

For info contact Hackney Ark Resource Centre on: 020 7014 7005/6, or Claire Ruocco on 020 8985 2158.

Be part of Hackney's living past

THE Council is asking residents to donate old photographs to help document to the story of Hackney.

The photos will become part of a collection – called Hackney's Living Past – showing how people lived in the borough.

Some of the photos will be used as part of a display at Homerton Library throughout the rest of Black History Month. After this they will be kept for future generations as part of the permanent collections at Hackney Archives. So far the display includes a selection of photos from the Council's archives showing local life in the 1970s and 1980s.

If you would like to donate your photographs to Hackney Archives, please call to let them know. Donations are also being taken at Homerton Library. To find out more call: 020 7241 2886, or visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/archives

Your favourite building?

THERE'S still time to vote in the 'People's Choice' category in the Council's Hackney Design Awards 2010. Residents have until 25 October vote for their favourite building in the annual awards.

There are now 19 Hackney buildings to vote for, with Dalston Lane South being withdrawn earlier this month. It is hoped that the development will resubmit an application for a future award, when the entire Dalston Square programme, including the main square, library and additional residential development, is complete.

Lets get moving

By

A COLOURFUL festival in Gillett Square set about dispelling stigma about mental illness – and encouraging people to get active.

Taking place on World Mental Health Day, the 'Get Moving in Dalston' event offered a feast of culture and activity on 10 October.

It began with a performance by Trust in Harmony Community Choir, followed by aerobic sessions, salsa, and music from The Light Sleepers, a band of service users from Lee House Rehabilitation and Employment Centre, N16.

Newham Asian Women's Network presented a Bollywood dance performance and invited the audience onto the stage to learn some dance moves.

For those after something more tranquil, Brazilian yoga and relaxation tips were also available.

Six short films about mental health, showcasing local organisations and artists, were screened in the Vortex Jazz Club and, later in the evening, there was a rehearsed reading of '4:48 Psychosis', by Sarah Kane, a playwright who lived with serious depression. It was presented by training organisation The SITE for Contemporary Psychoanalysis, at the Arcola Theatre.

£500k for community projects

By
Ruth Garland

A YOUTH project addressing issues around gangs, bullying, wellbeing and sexual health is one of the good causes to receive a share of over £500,000 in Team Hackney Community Grants.

Youth organisation YOH, which won funding for its 'Choices' project, was one of 34 voluntary and community sector groups to receive these grants.

The programme, which is managed by Hackney Council for Voluntary Service (HCVS), supports a range of projects that address priorities such as inequalities in health; support for older people; improving the environment; tackling domestic violence; and reducing youth crime.

The Team Hackney grants for individual organisations and projects ranged from £1,000 to £30,000.

As well as advising hundreds of local community groups, HCVS also manages the East End and City Grassroots Grants in Hackney – a three-year funding programme by the Government, which comes to an end this year.

Fifteen local organisations received a share of this £70,949 programme. Designed for small community groups, and worth up to £5,000 each.

Team Hackney is the local strategic partnership, which is dedicated to improving the quality of life in Hackney by bringing together all those who provide services for residents.

Case study – YOH Choices

YOH, based in Hoxton, received £13,000 for its practical advice project aiming to help Hackney young people make informed decisions about their health and wellbeing. Ergel Hassan, YOH Director, said: "The community grants are perfect for getting local people to provide local solutions. Young people don't need us to tell them what not to do – that's not our role. The project's role is to reach the right people and tackle the complications leading to bad health choices."

See what's on offer at Hackney Downs Station

Platform for creativity

PASSENGERS can visit a new reading room and art exhibition on Platform One at Hackney Downs railway station.

Ami Clarke's work, entitled 'Banner Repeater', is the latest in a line of projects supported by the Council to return empty shops and premises to life.

It runs until September 2012 and includes a programme of exhibitions, events and performances, as well as creating a reading room that will hold a collection of art books and printed materials for sale or just browsing.

Another 'Art in Empty Spaces' project, Farm:Shop at 20 Dalston Lane, E8, is due to open to the public in November. All the works are financed by Government funding awarded to the Council, and designed to provide temporary activities that will benefit Hackney's residents and visitors.

Play area closes for revamp

NEW facilities are to replace the existing play area in Clissold Park as part of a £9million refurbishment project. Work on the playground next to Clissold House

An artist's impression of the new play facilities for Clissold Park will begin from 1 November. Residents are asked to use nearby playgrounds while work takes place. These include Butterfield Park, N16; Stoke Newington Common, N16; Finsbury Park, N4; and Highbury Fields, N5.

Clissold's new play area – due to open its gates in spring 2011 – will have a skate and wheels park for older children; a multi-use games area complete with goals and line markings for basketball and five-a-side football; and a built-in table tennis table. There will be a play area of wooden bridges, hollow logs, tractor tyre swings, a tall climbing web with swings and roundabouts for smaller children.

Apprentices start to learn their trade

SIX recruits ready to learn a new trade have joined Hackney Homes to make a day-to-day impact on the borough.

The group, who were all hired over the summer following a recruitment campaign, include three electricians, two plumbers and one multi-skilled apprentice. All are Hackney residents, aged 16 to 19, and will now learn a trade from qualified professionals, while being supported to get an NVQ qualification.

Multi-skilled apprentice Evie Barlow said: "I am really enjoying it, especially as I'm learning a bit of everything."

Charlotte Graves, Hackney Homes Chief Executive, said: "Every year, we have a fantastic response to our apprenticeship scheme and we are proud to give these six young people a chance to learn a trade and become highly-skilled and well-qualified workers in Hackney."

Hackney Homes is an arms-length management organisation responsible for around 30,000 Council properties in the borough.

The Blitz was the sustained bombing of Britain, during the Second World War, between 1940 and 1941

“It is really important that we give older residents every opportunity to lead fit, healthy and independent lifestyles”

Residents and visitors to the borough strut their stuff at Stoke Newington Town Hall during the Blitz-themed tea dance

By
Gareth Greene

MORE than 140 people turned out to waltz the afternoon away at the Council's most recent tea dance for the over-50s.

The event, which was staged in the newly refurbished Stoke Newington Town Hall, is the latest in a series of popular tea dances that have taken place in Hackney this year for older people.

To mark the 70th anniversary of the Blitz during the Second World War, the tea dance was themed to reflect London life during the early 1940s. Staff and volunteers dressed in period costumes; ration book style refreshment tickets were issued; and resident DJ, Mr Wonderful, provided sounds from the 1940s.

Cllr Jonathan

McShane, Cabinet Member for Community Services, said: “I had a great time at this event and I know that everyone else really enjoyed themselves.

“As a council, we feel it is really important that we give older residents every opportunity to lead fit, healthy and independent lifestyles.

“A tea dance offers exactly that and is a great way to make new friends. It is also fitting to commemorate the 70th anniversary of the Blitz.”

Photographers put forward their take on what the borough means to them, with hundreds of entries in the Capture Hackney competition

By
Nicola Quinn

THE winner of the 'Capture Hackney' competition was announced at an event at Hackney Museum to launch an exhibition of residents' photos.

The museum joined up with photography organisation Shoot Experience to create a display of local people's inspirational snap shots.

Internationally renowned photographers Stephen Gill and Dennis Morris were also on hand to select images for the exhibition.

Judges were looking for pictures with real personality and a genuine sense of Hackney as it is today, in order to capture a moment in time and make future generations of viewers feel they are leaping right back to 2010.

The project, jointly funded by the Council and Heritage Lottery Fund, received 232 entries from 58 photographers.

George Best's photo 'Demolition of the Homerton College of Technology, Hackney, 2007' was voted the winner. He was presented with an Olympus camera; a print by Dennis Morris, who began his career in Hackney; and a Stephen Gill photography book. George said: "I'm delighted – it's great. I've never had a single photo of mine printed before so it's great to see it exhibited."

Highly commended was a shot by Julien Creff (right), a teacher and photographer. He was presented with a Dennis Morris print and

Stephen Gill book and print. Runners-up Lucia Shaw, Paul Massey, Stuart York and Chas Wilshire, all photographers, and museum curator Susie Walker, were given a Dennis

"Congratulations to the winners and thanks to everyone who took part. The standard was high and it was tough picking out just a few prize winners. All the entries are on display, so come and see the stunning pictures, and how the borough is changing."

After the exhibition, selected pictures will be sent to the Council's archives as a legacy for future generations.

Things can be different

By
Ruth Garland

TRUDI Styler was one of her parents' lodgers, and she counts actresses Alex Kingston and Gina McKee among her friends from student days.

But Jo Carter, founder and artistic director of Immediate Theatre, in Hoxton, is better known in Hackney's schools and housing estates.

One of Immediate Theatre's projects recently featured on Radio 4's PM programme as a good example of how to engage young people. 'Meet The Parents' is a peer-led drama workshop with teenagers, part of Hackney's highly-praised teenage pregnancy partnership. It is also part of Jo's firm belief in the power of drama to bring about change in peoples' lives.

She was born and brought up in a large, rambling house in a socially-mixed and multi-ethnic part of Bristol, one of two daughters of a careers officer and drama teacher who took in lodgers. Alan Rickman was another young resident who later hit the big time.

By the age of 14, Jo was helping backstage at the Little Theatre, Bristol – an independent venue led by Peter Postlethwaite – which helped launch the careers of many actors and directors.

"Acting was what I'd always done," she says, adding: "At school and at my local youth theatre I got to play some great parts. But I knew I wanted to be a director."

At 16, she came to London to join the National Youth Theatre, winning critical plaudits for her role as Falstaff's landlady, Mistress Quickly, in Shakespeare's Henry IV. Two years later, she moved to London to study English and Drama, and from then on, worked as a director.

She says: "I lived in Richmond, but it was not the right place for me; not culturally mixed enough."

"I was touring the UK, and working in schools with writers and running workshops. But I didn't like the 'hit and run' approach where a company arrived and showed people what to do. I wanted to establish a strong relationship with an area."

Two turning points brought her to Hackney and the setting up, with actress Clara Onyemere, of Immediate Theatre in 1996.

She recalls: "One evening in 1989, I drove round the North Circular and moved into my sister Vicki's flat in Murray Grove. Apart from a brief hop into Tower Hamlets at Victoria Park, I've lived here ever since."

"One of my final jobs in mainstream theatre was as the assistant director on David Mamet's 'The Cryptogram', at the Ambassadors. One night, looking at the audience, I thought, 'what am I doing? I don't care enough about this audience'.

"At the same time I was directing 75 young people in 'A Midsummer Night's Dream' at a disused church in Silvertown. I realised that the West End was not my dream. Immediate Theatre (meaning 'right here, right now'), takes as its starting point the idea that, to change, people need to imagine how different things can be."

The company now has nine full-time and nine part-time staff and a large number of freelancers, including many young peer educators, with a base in Hoxton Street next door to Hoxton Hall. Their latest innovation, '2moro?', is a Team Hackney-funded project that employs four former young offenders to use drama to engage their peers in identifying ways of defying youth crime and gang violence.

"I think we've established a model of good practice, putting community voices at the heart of our work, which is embedded in Hackney and is extending out to other boroughs," says Jo.

"Hackney is one of the richest places in the world to live: in its food, its creativity and its people. We've got to keep that creativity going. Information and knowledge are not enough," she adds.

All your recycling questions answered

Q: I visited my nearest recycling site recently and noticed it now takes cardboard and mixed plastic. Will this happen everywhere?

A: Following a successful trial this spring, residents can now recycle cardboard, mixed plastic packaging, and cartons at 25 'bring sites' across the borough. The new banks – which also take plastic bottles and metal tins and cans – should make recycling while out and about even easier. The Council hopes to be able to roll out more of these banks to other sites over the next few months. To find out where your nearest one is, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/recycling

SCHOOLS across the borough can now book free assemblies and workshops, to help pupils learn about recycling and cutting down on the waste they produce.

Funded by the Council, the sessions are delivered by EcoACTIVE, a local charity that provides environmental education.

EcoACTIVE use an innovative, hands-on, practical approach to teach young people about recycling and environmental awareness.

The workshops and assemblies cover topics such as using schools' cow-print recycling bins; composting; setting up recycling systems in schools; and local environmental quality.

Harrington Hill Primary School has already signed up to encourage pupils to think about the environment, and the ways they can protect it. Michelle Bell, the school's Sustainability Leader, said: "We are committed to environmental education and have set up an eco-committee of children who come together every week to discuss what they can do to ensure our school is sustainable.

“Really fun and engaging and very well received by the children. I encourage all schools to call up and book”

"It was great to have the EcoACTIVE team come along and educate the children further. The sessions are really fun and engaging and very well received by the children.

I encourage all schools to call up and book a workshop."

EcoACTIVE is currently taking bookings from Hackney schools for the workshops and assemblies.

Residents making the most of their communal compost facilities

Recognition for reducing waste

THE Council's recycling team is a finalist in the Local Authority Recycling Advisory Committee (LARAC) Celebration Awards 2010.

The team was nominated in the Best Waste Minimisation or Prevention Project category, for its work in the borough to set up community composting schemes and reduce waste.

The team has been working with groups of residents to set up communal composting at their blocks of flats, allowing them to lead more sustainable lifestyles and reduce organic waste.

Community composting has now become an integral part of daily life for thousands of residents who do not have individual outside space. Currently 12 communities and 28 schools are part of the scheme, which is expected to divert over 20 tonnes of organic waste in its first year.

The winner will be announced at a gala ceremony at St George's Hall in Liverpool on the evening of November 3.

A SCHEME that offers residents a chance to meet up with their friends, family, neighbours and colleagues and reduce their carbon footprint is coming to Hackney.

In partnership with the Council, environmental charity Global Action Plan (GAP) will be working with residents to form

SIGNED UP?

An EcoTeam launch event will take place on 4 December at Hackney Town Hall from 10am to 1pm

'EcoTeams' and help them find practical ways of reducing their environmental impact. Since 2000, around 4,000 households across the country have saved an average of £170 a year on their energy bills by making simple, effective changes in their day to day lives.

Support and guidance for those who sign up will be provided along the way, through locally customised EcoTeams webpages.

Hackney's EcoTeam launch event will take place on 4 December, from 10am to 1pm at the Town Hall.

An extra 375 tonnes of Hackney waste has been diverted from landfill in the last year

A greener year

IT has been one year since the Council expanded its recycling service to include cartons and household plastic packaging. Since then, an extra 375 tonnes has been diverted from landfill.

Residents can now recycle a wide range of materials such as paper, plastic, card, glass, metals, clothes and oil in their green boxes.

Recycling this material conserves resources, saves energy, reduces landfill and helps protect the environment.

So carry on doing your bit and help make Hackney cleaner and greener.

Sports for everyone

Pupils battling it out at The Learning Trust's School Sports Championships, which gave them a taste of Paralympic sports such as wheelchair basketball

By
Kate Gibney

FIVE host boroughs, 10 Paralympic events, more than 2,000 competing school children: the logistics of the Schools Sports Championship were enough to give London 2012 a run for its money.

Non-disabled and disabled children participated in the annual event that gives young people a taste of Paralympic sports including, archery, judo, table tennis and wheelchair basketball. In the previous two years, only Hackney schools vied against each other. But this year pupils from fellow 2012 host boroughs Waltham Forest, Tower Hamlets, Newham and Greenwich were added to the event – further bolstering its credentials as the country's biggest inclusive sports competition.

“ We have a number of schools now in Hackney that are rolling out inclusive sport in their PE lessons ”

Running from 11-15 October, schools in the five boroughs sampled sports at three Hackney sites: Clissold Leisure Centre, Stoke Newington School and West Reservoir.

Sebright Primary School pupil Jordan, 10, said: “I enjoyed doing wheelchair basketball because I could go really fast, and the coach told me how to throw a ball and move in the wheelchair at the same time.”

Aneurin Wood, Disability Inclusion Officer from championship

organiser The Learning Trust, added: “This event has helped raise awareness among children and teachers of disability issues and the importance of putting on inclusive sport, so that everyone can take part. We have a number of schools now that are rolling out inclusive sport in PE lessons and sporting activities.”

A team from Stormont House, E5, won the overall secondary team title, while Grasmere, N16, was victorious in the primary schools competition.

Legacy's rapid approach

HACKNEY pupils will be among the first to battle Lee Valley's new white water rafting course – a year before the Olympic and Paralympic Games.

One of the most intense Games events, rafting will see athletes navigate rough water at Lee Valley Regional Park's new White Water Centre. One lucky chosen school group from Hackney will ride the rapids for free in summer 2011, as part of Lee Valley Regional Park's Education Pledge. As well as rafting sessions, pupils will learn about the Games and go orienteering in the 1,000 acre River Lee Country Park.

The Centre opens to the public in spring 2011 and will have a 300m 2012 competition course and a 160m training course. Lee Valley Regional Park Authority wants it to be used by everyone, from schools and community groups to medal-winning athletes and future hopefuls.

News in brief

Bringing the site to school

THE Olympic Park construction site has now seen 100 young Construction Crew members pass through its gates. The primary school pupils have been keeping an eye on progress in the Park; meeting the people involved in its creation; learning about sustainability and archaeology; and taking workshops in leadership and presentation. They take their new knowledge back to their schools and present it to other pupils.

Forty primary school children from five of the 2012 host boroughs – Hackney, Tower Hamlets, Greenwich, Newham and Waltham Forest – have started on this year's crew, bringing the total to 100 since the project started in 2008. Former members have remained involved in the project, even after starting secondary school.

The project is being delivered by the Olympic Development Agency (ODA). Chief Executive, David Higgins, said: “This is a great opportunity to involve local young people in the transformation taking place in their area and develop their skills. This year's crew will see, first-hand, the Olympic Park ‘big build’ at its peak, with venues being completed and the park changing from brown to green as plants and trees take root.”

School's a top spot for games

JUBILEE primary has been awarded ‘facility of the year’ by the Football Foundation for its new multi-use games area. Kerry Joseph, the school's Business Manager, picked up the prize after working on securing funding. The Foundation described the bid she submitted as the best it had ever received.

As well as football, the games area is being used for cricket, tennis, basketball and handball, and as a training area for Hackney Youth Rugby Club and Hackney Young Lee Valley Regional Park Authority Carers Group.

Jubilee Head Teacher Jacqueline Bruton-Simmonds was thrilled at the award. She said: “We are incredibly proud of Kerry. She always gives 100 per cent, 100 per cent of the time. This is a fantastic resource and the entire community benefits as a result of her hard work and dedication.

Future Beauty: 30 Years of Japanese Fashion

Until 6 February 2011,
Barbican Centre, Silk St, EC2Y

PREVIEW

Did 1980s Japanese designers redefine world fashion? The Barbican believes so – and is all set to successfully back up its argument with exhibitions, talks, performances and workshops on Japan's modern fashion history.

According to the Barbican, innovators such as Issey Miyake and Yohji Yamamoto challenged western notions of beauty, and now a new generation of designers continue to embrace merging fashion and art.

By using an intellectual approach and ingenious reinterpretations of traditions, their work is said to have changed fashion language and the Barbican aims to dissect why throughout this autumn and well into winter.

The exhibition brings together more than 100 garments – some never before seen in the UK – and includes films and documentaries from notable catwalk shows from the last three decades. Other Barbican shows will focus on the power of light and shade, the concept of 'flatness' and the reinvention of Japanese techniques, such as kimono and origami, with technological advances made in textile fabrication.

Other highlights in the XXL event are 'Cosplay Extravaganza', costumed play and performances based on anime characters;

March of the Dead

30 October, 7pm, Hoxton Square to Gillet Square

One of my dreams – between world peace and a West Ham call up, the phone's on, Avram – is to be a Thriller video zombie. Impossible, yes, but if there is justice in this world, or the next, shimmying in red leather as a night creature during the March of the Dead Halloween parade will come very close.

Then again March of the Dead is unlikely to have too much to do with a 27-year-old music video. Anyway, it will be calling up locals to shuffle, groan and be undead on their way from Hoxton to Dalston.

Organisers StrangeWorks are expecting hundreds of revellers on 30 October to help show off Hackney's grass roots theatres, so be ready for performances, bands and other events along the way. In addition, on the 24 October StrangeWorks is set to run an open studio to support dancers, actors or puppet makers interested in making an even bigger impact on the day. Open studios takes place at Stoke Newington International Airport, 1-15 Leswin Place, N16 7NJ.

Cut out violence

By YH World Reporter

CHARITY Art Against Knives came about as a result of the stabbing of fashion student Oliver Helmsey, then 21, in Arnold Circus, E2, in 2008. The attack left him paralysed from the neck down.

The Charity has grown out of what was going to be a one-off exhibition to raise money and awareness of knife crime, organised by Oliver's friends and fellow students. Since then the crew has auctioned Matthew Williamson frocks at London Fashion Week; taken a bus with a sound system to the Love Box Festival in Victoria Park; and got artists, fashionistas and passers by to get creative to stop crime.

After a year of work, they want to hear from young people. What activities do you dream about? A dance group? Painting a derelict space or learning to make hats? Art Against Knives founder and Hackneyette Katy Dawe said: "We'd love to know what you guys want us to make happen in Hackney."

If you'd like to get involved, send your ideas, or better still, volunteer for the advisory board.

NEWS IN BRIEF

On the move?

By Chris Warburton

FAMILY driving you mad? Need your own space? Maybe it's time to spread your wings and find a place of your own to live. But where?

YH World is looking at the best – and worst – places in London for a young person to live. Moving out is a huge step, and it's important to choose a location that meets all of your needs.

Maybe you want to stay in the local area. Your friends and family would be nearby, and you love Hackney so much you never want to leave. But would you be missing out on a chance to explore another part of the city?

Perhaps you're an active, energetic person who loves the hustle and bustle of central London. The bright lights and fast pace of city life might seem perfect for you. It's probably not the best place on those days you fancy some peace and quiet, though!

It's a tricky decision – and hopefully one YH World and its website readers can help with. To read this article in full, and tell us where you'd like to live when you leave home, check out:

has been compiled with help from staff and volunteers at YH World – a social enterprise that produces a website full of info about events, courses, and general happenings in Hackney. They aim to make sure young people don't miss out – and most of the stuff they include is free to take part in.

They are always looking for young journalists and undercover reporters. To get involved call:

Some of the current ambassadors getting a sneak preview of the velodrome at the 2012 Olympic Park site

Could you be a 2012 ambassador?

THE hunt is on for the next set of young people who will play a vital role in the 2012 Games.

Hackney's Olympic & Paralympic Youth Ambassadors Project is made up of 30 young people, aged between 13 and 19, who keep their peers up to date about the 2012 Games; promote sports participation; and represent the Council at 2012 events. This year they visited the Olympic Park on 27 July, marking two years to go until the Games launch in 2012; played a leading role in the Hackney One Carnival; and helped to deliver the Council's Personal Bests sports scheme.

Grace Kavanagh, 15, said: "Being an ambassador has meant that I have been able to do things I would never normally have had the chance to do."

"I've learnt new skills, like communicating and leading other young people, even how to use a video camera. And I've learnt a lot about what is going to be happening in 2012."

Your views on Hackney Today

WHAT DO YOU THINK ABOUT YOUR COUNCIL NEWSPAPER?

Circulated to 108,000 homes and businesses in Hackney

Hackney Today is a fortnightly, free newspaper, produced by the Council. Since 2007, it has been redesigned; increased in size to 36 pages; and been short listed in national industry awards in 2008, 2009 and 2010.

Every year, we ask residents what they think about the paper, so that we can use your feedback to keep improving it. We'd really appreciate it if you could tell us what you think. If you have any ideas about how we can make the paper even better, now is your chance to tell us.

There are also some questions about the quarterly, ward-based Safer Hackney newsletters, which are distributed with Hackney Today.

DALSTON locals got an afternoon of free pampering earlier this month, care of Hackney Wick Time Bank volunteers.

Marking National Older People's Day, a wellbeing event at St Marks Community Hall offered free massages, makeovers,

T-shirt painting, NHS health checks and poetry readings. More than 70 people attended, half of whom were over 50. The aim of the day was to encourage people to prepare well for, and enjoy later life.

One visitor to the 2 October event, Ms Kononczuk said "It was a really wonderful day, I am so happy they had people doing massage, it was such a treat."

Family Mosaic's volunteering project, Hackney Wick Time Bank, encourages local people to swap their skills and time for free. Currently there are 40 volunteers signed up to the programme.

Tom Gardiner, Community Investment Manager for Family Mosaic, said "This event was a chance for our Time Bank members to share skills.

"The added benefit is that we can also provide extra services to our residents. I think it's fantastic that our Time Bank volunteers and local businesses have given their time and support to help elderly and vulnerable people in Hackney."

Protect yourself from flu

NHS City and Hackney is offering free seasonal flu vaccines to pregnant women for the first time.

Everybody aged over 65 is offered a free vaccination, as well as younger people with long-term conditions such as heart disease, asthma, diabetes, multiple sclerosis and serious kidney or liver disease.

NHS City & Hackney is encouraging all at-risk residents to protect themselves this winter by getting their jab, which is administered to around 15 million people every year in the UK.

Pregnant women are being offered the jab because it protects against the H1N1 strain (commonly known as swine flu), which increases the risk of severe illness and flu-related hospital admissions. Most Hackney GPs offer the seasonal flu vaccine. The best way to avoid flu is to get immunised, as well as covering coughs and sneezes with tissues; disposing them after one use; and cleaning hands as soon as possible afterwards.

Jonathan Mason, Head of Prescribing and Pharmacy at NHS City and Hackney, said: "The seasonal flu vaccination is available to help protect all residents in Hackney and the City who are more at risk. The procedure is quick and safe with almost no side effects."

News in brief

How's hospital for you?

HOMERTON hospital wants to know more about what patients think of its service.

Residents who receive a national patients' survey form are being urged by the hospital to fill it in and send it back to the programme's co-ordinators, Care Quality Commission, by the end of November.

Every year the information is used by Homerton to help improve its services, including patient information, food, cleanliness and the relationships between staff and patients. However, over recent years responses have been low, according to Chief Nurse Charlie Sheldon.

She said: "The survey is a very helpful guide to what our strengths are and what we need to focus on to improve patients' experiences during their stay in hospital. Unfortunately, in recent years, a relatively small number of our patients who were contacted actually responded to the survey. Last year we only saw a 36 per cent response rate."

"We are keen to know more from our patients about whether or not we are getting our services right all the time. We urge those patients who get this year's survey to fill it in and send it back. This will help us to get better and improve the experience for all patients in future."

Shop and drop the habit

HEALTH officials are hoping to tempt smokers from tobacconist queues to quitting clinics during their next supermarket visit.

NHS City and Hackney's programme, 'stop while you shop', has been designed to offer stop smoking support in two Hackney supermarkets to anyone living or working in the borough.

Programmes run for four weeks and those signing up will receive weekly support from advisors, as well as free carbon monoxide tests to monitor health improvements.

The clinics take place at Tesco Superstore, Morning Lane, on Monday and Wednesday, from 3-7pm; and Sainsbury's, Dalston Kinglands, Tuesday and Thursday, from 3-7pm. Both continue through October, with the last clinic on 25 November.

Stop while you shop is part of NHS City and Hackney's stop smoking service, offered through GPs and pharmacies, drop-in clinics, workplace clinics and community-based services. Additional support is also available through targeted street recruitment and price promotion campaigns.

Lifting the lid

Clockwise from left: Illustration of Dorset Works from 1935 book 'A Century of Service'; portrait of Samuel Dottridge from the same book; photograph of head office from a 1920s catalogue; undated advert for a Ford hearse; interior of a 1930s mobile showroom, which travelled the country visiting funeral companies and trade meetings; plate showing coffins from 1920s catalogue

By Sally England,
Local Studies Librarian

THE death of an unknown Hoxton child in the 1830s was the source from which a mighty local company eventually grew: Dottridge Brothers Ltd of East Road in Shoreditch.

Samuel Dottridge was born in 1811 and educated at Bowes Academy in Barnard Castle, County Durham. After leaving school Samuel was apprenticed in the building trade. He worked in Herne Bay for three years then moved to Hoxton, where he established his own building and decorating business. One day he was approached by a friend whose child had died, and asked to make a coffin. It was of a far better standard than usual and Samuel's workmanship was remembered. Before long requests for more coffins were made.

As trade increased, Samuel acquired his own horses and carriages. He bought an old posting yard in Dorset Mews on the corner of East Road and Beviden Street, with housing for coachmen above the stables. The Dorset Works site remained the company's main base until the 1980s.

When Samuel retired his four sons became partners, renaming the company Dottridge Brothers. Samuel's high standards were maintained and the business continued to develop. By 1913 Dottridge had more than 320 employees working in a wide range of crafts, three motor hearses with another one being built, and 115 horses. A number of other companies were acquired and agencies were set up across the world.

The First World War brought difficulties with nearly half the staff serving in the armed forces. The Dorset Works was badly bombed during the Second World War and the coffin-making mill totally burnt out. Despite this, Dottridge arranged the burial of 20 bodies from bombing in Buttesland Street in October 1940, and for the interment of 32 Blitz victims at the Great Northern Cemetery in May 1941.

The Dorset Works was rebuilt, but during the 1950s some of the business moved to Hatfield in Hertfordshire and Downham Market in Norfolk. The 1960s saw the acquisition of many smaller funeral directors' firms in London, East Anglia and the south east. Vehicle construction came to an end in the 1970s, although some Dottridge horse-drawn hearses are still used by carriages today.

By the time the last member of the Dottridge family left in 1983, the company consisted of 200 staff and 30 businesses. In 1985 Dottridge relocated to Hoddesdon in Hertfordshire, and in 1988 was purchased by Kenyon Securities for £11.5m. Subsequent mergers have made this part of Dignity Caring Funeral Services. The last premises trading under the name of Dottridge Brothers, in Roman Road, closed in 2000.

After the Dorset Works closed, Hackney Historic Buildings Trust discovered records left behind in the offices and notified Hackney Archives of their existence. Much had been damaged beyond repair by flooding, but a sample was retained by the Archives to help preserve over a century and a half's history of a major local company.

Hackney's leg saw pupils carry the historical torch through London Fields and along Regents Canal on 12 October.

The young participants also passed a baton filled with messages written by pupils – before handing it on at Mile End Park Stadium.

Tower Hamlets students then took up the torch and headed into the City. The relay started in Havering on 1 October, and will continue travel around London, ending in Greenwich.

The Big WoW is an annual celebration to raise awareness of the Walk once a Week campaign, while launching International Walk to School Month, which encourages children to achieve the recommended 60 minutes per day of physical activity. Analysis of the scheme in Hackney showed that schools participating in the initiative have seen an average 34 per cent decrease

At the Mile End Park stadium, pupils got to try a variety of Olympic sports, and met Olympian Mark Richardson in pupils travelling to school by car, and a corresponding increase in pupils who regularly walk to school.

Tim Ifill, Learning Mentor from Princess May, said: "We started at London Fields and walked the two miles along Regents Canal to meet the Olympic athletes at Tower Hamlets. The route was really good: they were year fives – about nine years old – and some had never seen a canal or a narrow boat before. For them, that was an adventure in itself."

News in brief

The Cycle Task Force out and about

Riding out crime

THE Metropolitan Police Service has expanded its unit that aims to improve bike safety – and crack down on road users disobeying the Highway Code.

Ten more officers joined the Cycle Task Force last month, taking the number of people in the team to 40. The recruits, who have swapped police cars for bikes, will focus on traffic enforcement and road safety.

Originally, the Metropolitan Police Cycle Task Force was set up to tackle cycle theft in the Capital; since its introduction in June it has security marked close to 5,000 bikes; made nearly 20 arrests for theft; and returned stolen bikes to their rightful owners.

The unit ran a six-week campaign this summer to target road users who disobeyed traffic signals, cycled carelessly or on pavements, or used their mobile phones while cycling. Transport for London (TfL) said more than 900 fixed-penalty notices were issued to drivers and motorcyclists, while over 400 were given to cyclists. The Cycle Task Force is part of the Safer Transport Command, and is funded by TfL.

To contact the Cycle Task Force, e-mail: cycltaskforce@met.police.uk

Bus route changes

RESIDENTS should be aware that Transport for London (TfL) was due to change bus services on two routes through Hackney from 15 October. Route 349 – from Ponders End to Stoke Newington Common – is being shortened to finish at Stamford Hill Broadway. The change will end the service's connection to Stoke Newington town centre, as well as cutting the frequency of buses. Route 149 – London Bridge to Edmonton Green, travelling along Kingsland Road – will change from 'bendy' to the conventional but smaller double decker buses. Bus regularity will increase during weekday peak hours, but will be reduced on Saturdays and stay the same at other times.

Hackney is a fast improving Council, serving one of the UK's most diverse populations. Regeneration is improving housing, public services and transport links. Crime is falling. Exam results are up. The Olympics are coming...

Job vacancies

2011 Census workers

Various roles, salaries & working patterns

On March 27, 2011, the next census takes place. A census is a count of the population, and the UK has one every ten years. The information is used to plan and allocate funding to local services. This is generating over 35,000 temporary part-time and full-time jobs in England and Wales, approximately 250 of which are in Hackney.

There are a wide range of roles on offer, and contract periods range from a few weeks to several months. All roles call for flexibility regarding working hours, with the requirement to work up to 8pm at times, as well as weekend working.

The majority of roles will be physically demanding, working outside and dealing with the public. Successful applicants will need to manage their workload effectively in order to meet timescales.

Before they start work, the Census Team will ensure that new staff have the knowledge and skills required to carry out their responsibilities. Therefore, they will be given training that is specific to their role before starting work – for which they will receive payment.

Details of all the jobs that are available will be added to the census jobs website until January 2011, and residents can register for job alerts so that details of all jobs that meet their criteria will be e-mailed to them.

Children & Young People's Services

Children's Practitioner

£27,945 – £29,571

Apply by: 24 October

In Hackney, we are Reclaiming Social Work, which means working in a way that encourages professional skill and confidence, and leads Social Workers back to doing the work they have trained for. We are currently looking for a proactive person, who is committed to Hackney's families to join us as a Children's Practitioner.

The successful candidate will have knowledge and understanding of a range of assessment factors and the ability to analyse, summarise and evaluate complex information. They'll also have knowledge of childcare legislation; the ability to implement effective interventions with children and families; and be able to write concise reports. This will be coupled with IT skills needed to work with information management systems and produce good quality data in a range of formats.

They will have experience of working with children and families, and the ability to create a rapport and build relationships with children and their parents and carers. Knowledge of statutory frameworks and guidance for children's social work is essential, as is the ability to manage their own workload and be accountable for case work.

Job Profile Alan Self

2011 Census Area Manager, Hackney talks to Hackney Today about the census roles

What are the benefits of working for the 2011 Census?

There are a whole range of roles with different working hours, so there is the opportunity to fit working around your life, for example family commitments or other part-time work. Working for the census also means that you get to know the borough and your community better – you really get to see first-hand what makes Hackney special. Knowing that you are playing a part in securing improvements to local services and facilities is also very rewarding.

What are the challenges?

The biggest challenge is making sure everyone in Hackney gets counted, no matter what their circumstances, so we'll need to tap into every part of the community. Getting people to understand some of the key information about the census – the link to local service funding and the fact that it is completely confidential – can be hard. To get the general public to appreciate this, staff will need to be patient, and good communicators.

What kind of people are you looking for?

Everyone! There will be around 250 part-time jobs and we'd really like to see people from all of Hackney's communities applying, including people who speak a language other than English. Candidates need to be self-motivated, reliable and have good interpersonal skills. Each role has different requirements, so I recommend that people take time to look at the website and decide which one is right for them.

Recipes straight from the ovens at Water House

www.waterhouserestaurant.co.uk

THIS is the latest in a series of regular recipes courtesy of Waterhouse – an eco-friendly restaurant alongside the Regent's Canal in Shoreditch. With Halloween on the way and pumpkins plentiful in shops and supermarkets, Chef James Blonde cooks up a seasonal treat. He says: "This light vegetarian dish sums up autumn with its delicious flavours; it's also mostly prepared in advance, leaving you more time to spend with your guests or family."

"The pumpkin and the walnuts are a seasonal marriage, and the tapenade provides a salty contrast to the bold sweetness of the pumpkin or squash."

Savoury pumpkin cheesecake

Serves 8

Preparation time
1.5 hours

Cooking time
15 minutes

Ingredients

- 1 bunch fresh sage, finely chopped
- 1 handful crushed walnuts
- 1 large pumpkin or two butternut squash
- 750g Crème Fraiche (drained)
- 200g breadcrumbs
- 250ml olive oil
- 1 pinch cumin
- 1 300g packet oatcakes
- 75g softened butter
- 300g black olives in brine.
- Salt and pepper to season

bind the mixture. Place in a buttered cake ring, pat down and bake at 160°C for 10 mins

- Then attend to your filling. The pumpkin or squash should be peeled, chopped into small chunks, seasoned, drizzled with olive oil and roasted at 160 °C until soft.
- When cool combine with the crème fraiche and the sage and spoon into the cake ring. Sprinkle with crushed walnuts and set aside.
- For the tapenade blitz olives until smooth. If the mixture is too dense add a little olive oil

To serve

- Place the cheesecake in the oven for 15 mins at 140°C. If it hasn't coloured, increase the heat to 160°C for a couple of mins until it begins to brown at the edges. Remove the ring, cut in slices and serve with tapenade

Method

- Place the cumin, oatcakes and breadcrumbs in a mixer and blitz to an even texture. Add butter and a little seasoning and enough oil to

Manor House future

A SURVEY is offering an opportunity for residents to have their say on the Council's proposed vision for the area around the Manor House Tube station over the next 15 years. The Council is consulting on a draft Manor House Area Action Plan (Phase1) Masterplan. It was informed by talks with the public and a range of organisations. This helped identify a need for more variety of and better quality shops, better use of old buildings; better access to Finsbury

Park and West Reservoir; and a cleaner, safer street environment.

Look out for drop-in sessions on 19 October, from 6-8pm, at Woodberry Down Community Primary School, N4; and on 25 October, from 6-8pm, at West Reservoir Centre, N4. The consultation closes on 6 December. For info and to complete the survey visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/manor-house-aap.htm

To request a paper survey call: 020 8356 8047, or e-mail, with 'Manor House' as the subject line: strategic.delivery@hackney.gov.uk

Last chance

THERE is still time to have your say on the way licensed premises are managed in Hackney. The consultation on the revised Licensing Policy closes on 25 October. The Council is keen to learn how the current Licensing Policy has affected residents and how they think the proposed Licensing Policy will affect them. For info and to take part visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/licensing To request a paper survey email: licensing@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 2431.

The Mayor and Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2010.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services.

They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

To check which councillor covers your area, or confirm surgery times, call: 020 8356 3373. More info: www.hackney.gov.uk/l-mayor-cabinet-councillors.htm

The Mayor

Jules Pipe

Hackney has an executive Mayor, Jules Pipe, who is not a councillor, but is directly elected by the entire borough. The Mayor is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of the Council who is elected annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Sally Mulready.

Part of the big day

Christie Junor-Sheppard, Superintendent Registrar

Christie has worked in the Council's Registrars Service for six and a half years since spotting an advertisement in a paper while sitting on a train. Although it was a departure from her role at a housing association, it was something that immediately appealed. "I remembered going to register my own children" she says, "and thinking what lovely handwriting the registrar had! And how nice to be a part of such an important part of someone's life." Since then, the Registrars Team has grown, in both size and reputation and gets consistently good feedback from residents. Christie is really proud of the fact that the team won a Hackney Star for Excellence in Customer Care last year, but says that it works both ways: "our customers are really nice and we get to meet people from so many different backgrounds."

Christie says that her favourite part of the job is still conducting ceremonies. "It's such a thrill to be a part of someone's big day and I think it deep down I'm a frustrated actress so it's something I really enjoy!"

Life's big moments

By
Siobhan Silbert

If you live in Hackney, it's likely that at some point, you'll come across the Council's Registrars Service.

The team, including two employees placed through the Future Jobs Fund, play a key role in the significant events of thousands of Hackney residents every year.

Their work includes issuing notices of marriage; conducting marriages, civil partnerships, naming and affirmation ceremonies; providing a nationality checking service; conducting citizenship ceremonies and registering births and deaths. A recent inspection by the General Register Office, part of the Identity and Passport Service at the Home Office, saw the team awarded an 'A' for customer and business focus.

The team can also issue replacement birth, death and marriage certificates,

The newly-refurbished Stoke Newington Town Hall is one of the approved venues where registrars perform weddings in Hackney dating back from 1837, when Civil Registration was introduced.

This service is increasingly popular since programmes like Who Do You Think You Are? sparked an interest in tracing family history.

Whilst the team's offices are in the Hackney Service Centre and Hackney Town Hall, registrars travel around the borough conducting civil ceremonies in all of Hackney's approved wedding venues, including the restored Stoke Newington Town Hall, Shoreditch Town Hall, and many more.
